NORFOLK FACTIONS UNABLE TO AGREE

Case Expected to Come Before State Committee September 7th.

TO KEEP JONES FROM JAIL

His Physician Says He Will Not Allow Him to Be Moved From Hospital,

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) NORFOLK, VA., August 30.—The fol-lowing is a statement of the condition of the contest in Portsmouth and Nor-folk county, for the pomination of the candidate for State Senator, which tohn C. Niemeyer, of Portsmouth, clams on the number of votes cast at the deubic polls, held by the two factions in Norfolk

The canyass by the chalman of the two committees of the vote cast in the city and county for State Senator was a fizzle and the whole question will go before the State Committee for settle-ment. At the moving held in Portsmouth last night, F. Nash Bilisoly, Chairman of the County Committee, announced that his committee had canvassed the rehis committee had canvassed the returns made to him, and would canvas none other. W. Jones Williams, of the City Committee, replied to Mr. fallsoly and said that he would accept nothing short of a count of every vote cast in Norfolk cosing. The statements of the two chairmen sum up the situation and the fight will be along those lines. Mr.
Williams has issued a call for the City Committee to meet to-morrow sight to

BALSEED AT THE OATH.

Committee to meet to-morrow again to take action.

BALKED AT THE DATH.

Mr. Niemoyer's position is that he went into a joint primary after having received a nomination for State Sensitor from the Democrats of Portsmoute on the assurance of the City and County Committees, confirmed by State Chariman Ellyson, that there would be a fair election in Norfolk county and that every vote cast would be counted. To pledge to be used in the election was prepared by a sub-committee of the Portsmouth committee and accepted by the Norfolk County Committee, and was a simple affair, but on election day the straightout judges presented a solemin oath to be sworn to by the voter, and it was this oath that caused a split at the polls.

was arraigned in the Police Court this morning, charged with an attempt to cut the throat of Mamie Howard, a woman of Washington Street. The young man was there drinking beer at twenty-five cents a bottle till his money gave out and his welcome lapsed. When he drew a knife and tried to recover his money by threats against the girl's throat, the police were called, and the young man was sent to the station house for the night. Having no defense he was sent to Jail under a fine this morning.

TO KEEP JONES OUT OF JAIL. The friends of Captain E. W. Jones are making an effort to keep him out of jail, He is in St. Vincent's Hospital and has recovered from the enects of cutting his own throat after cutting the throat of Maud Cameron Robertson and killing her instantly. As he has not hau an examining trial, and as he is a prisoner without bail. Chief of Police Boush desfres to recall the two policemen who are assigned to guard him in the hospital and send him to jail. The private physician of Captain Jones, declares that he will not consent to the romoval of his patient to the fail, and the interne says that the patient is well enough to go to Jail, but as the facilities in the Jail hospital are not so complete as those of St. Vincent's Hospital, there enough to go to jai, but as the facilities in the jail hospital are not so complete as those of St. Vincent's Hospital, there might be some danger in removing the sittehes from the patient's throat there. Chief Boush is persistent and will summon one of the city physicians to say whether the prisoner can be removed.

When seen later at the office of the Missouri Paeffic, Mr. Gould described the adventure of his wife and himself on a mountain road in Normandy, in which they narrowly escaped dearn.

"My wife and J." said Mr. Gould, "started out from Dieppe in an automobile to ascend one of the mountains in Normandy. We wanted to see a villa Normandy. We wanted to see a villa the mountains in the mountains in the mountains in the mountains. It was a new machine, the mountains in the mountains in the mountains in the mountains in the mountains.

"When we started down the mountain I thought I had the machine under perfect control. I am used to the Mercedes, which has a splendid brake.

"The road we were descending made a sharp turn, which resembled h bent elbow, and just beyond it was a steep embankment. In making the turn I found that the foot brake would not work. I did not know what was beyond the embankment. For all I knew, in fact, there might have been a steep precipice.

"We seemed to be facing death in that moment, and I thought there was no need that both of us should be killed, so I called to my wife to Jump. She did so, but fell in the road. One wheel of the machine passed over her leg, just above the ankle.

very careful consideration, the department is compelled to disapprove this implied finding."

"In view of the many painful features of this immentable affair, it is a source of especial satisfaction to the department to approve the findings of the court of inquiry, respecting the highly credible conduct of all the survivors of the officers and erew of the Bennington after the explosion occurred. It is but just to mention as included in this recommendation, Commander Lucien Young and Ensign Charles T. Wale, and also to note that special reference is made to Lieutenant A. F. H. Yates, U. S. A.

Notwithstanding the severe loss sustained by the ship's complement, and the suddenness and terrible consequence of the accident, discipline was fully maintained; all the officers seem to have discharged their duties with entire presence of mind, intelligence and courage, the crippled vessel was handled judiciously and skillfully, and the survivors of the crew showed bravery and humanity in the rescue of their infortunate shipmates worthy of the honorable traditions of our service. The department notes with pleasure these redeeming features of an appalling, and also discreditable disaster."

Our courts are now well organized and equipped with all the machinery for the discovery and punishment of crime, and as far as I can judge they have manifested commendable zeal in the accomplishment of these ends. The natural, if the necessary tendency of all such movements, is, I think with all deforence, movements, is, I think with an in some measure at least to impair their influence in the community and thus weaken or cripple them in work for which they were created and for which they are far better suited than any other nganization known to me."

could not tend to impair the influence of

For instance the Electoral Board of this city, which is absolutely master of the election officers, consists of Messrs. Hancock, Ebel and Cohen. I happen to know that Mr, Hancock will state to any one that he has no more to do with the appointment of these election officers than the Emperor of Japan has. If it were a fact that members of the Electoral Board, in appointing the election judges, were governed by improper motives, it might be entirely beyond the power of the courts to establish the impropriaty and correct the evil; yet this committee of fifty might set agencies and influencies at work that would demonstrate the evil and bring about a cure.

Second Objection.

Second Objection.

Second Objection.

Judge Christian's second objection is that the committee "is calculated to increase, rather than to allay any animosities which may have been engendered between the frierdis of the opposing candidates in the late primary election."

It is as hard for me to understand this as it was for me to understand the claim of the Martin men, prior to the election that our movement was aimed at injuring Mr. Martin. If Mr. Martin was in favor of fair elections, how could a movement to secure fair elections hurt him? Answer me that question? And if Mr. Martin and his friends were in favor of fair elections, how can a movement for fair elections tend to increase any animosities that may have been engendered between the friends of Martin and Montague prior to the election.

Judge Christian adds that in his governed the preservation of the Demo-lague prior to the election.

Judge Christian adds that in his "opinion the preservation of the Democratic party demands that every movement which might tend to keep alive strife and discord in the ranks of that party, should be avoided as far as it is possible to do so."

Must Root Out Fraud.

Must Root Out Fraud.

I am as deeply concerned in the welfare of the Democratic pary as Judge Christian can be, but let me tell you, there can be no preservation of the welfare of the Democratic party if it tolerates fradulent elections. Not only its welfare, but its future existence depends upon our extirpating fraud in our elections, and it will go to destruction, and deserve to go to destruction, if all Democrats do not set their faces like flint against fradulent elections."

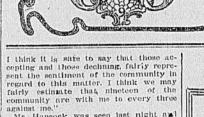

"Is there any truth in the rumor that your committee has gone to pieces?"

"Not the smallest; and of all who have answered them only three have declined."
